

111 Years of Campfires

With the addition of tonight's ashes, the lineage of these campfire ashes will have passed through 2,018 campfires over 111 years (every year since 1936) in 47 US states plus the District of Columbia, in 61 nations and 62 National & World Scout Jamborees, and scouters took them to the surface of the Moon and back.

The tradition of the friendship campfire ashes began long ago. Legend has it, the founder of Scouting, Lord Robert Baden-Powell, wanted Scouts and Scouters to have a tangible reminder that they are part of a brotherhood of now millions of Scouts and Scouters enjoying the warmth of campfires around the world.

As the Scouting Movement grew, Baden-Powell was invited to campfires wherever he went. He carried a small sample of the ashes from his last campfire to the new one. He would then add those ashes to the next fire and tell of the lineage and the Scouts and Scouters who had shared the earlier fires with him.

Then, when those embers had cooled to ash, he'd again collect a small sample of their ashes, which included those of many others mingled in, to carry to his next stop. And in his journal, he'd add the name, location and the date of each fire.

Scouts and Scouters from nations all over the world now perpetuate this meaningful tradition by sharing campfire ashes wherever they go. Below is the lineage of these ashes. Tomorrow when these ashes have cooled, you're welcome to take some with you to connect this amazing record of past friendship fires with your future work in scouting.

July 16-Aug 7, 1971, Apollo 15 Commander David Scott carried scout campfire ashes in a small vial during his moon walk at the Hadley Apennine landing site. Both Scott and Alfred Worden, Command Module Pilot, had been scouts.

Now you're apart of these campfire memories. Keep them just to remind you of scout campfires shared or share them with future campfires to pass on the spirit of scouting in years to come.
